ANIMAL INTAKE POLICY

Their Voice Rescue (TVR) works with a number of shelters and rescue organizations to bring into our care adoptable dogs who are at risk of euthanasia due to factors other than intractable behavioral issues and irreparably poor quality of life due to medical issues. We work with our rescue partners to bring in dogs who, through no fault of their own, have found their way into shelters where limited space and resources place them at risk.

TVR does not accept dogs who have exhibited aggression towards humans, with the possible exception of incidents of aggression exhibited during the course of veterinary care or other traumatic or painful events.

TVR does not restrict the breeds, ages, or sizes of dogs we accept.

TVR will consider dogs with extensive medical needs on a case-by-case basis but must limit acceptance of these dogs to our available resources and physical ability to accommodate their needs.

TVR will consider owner-surrender dogs on a case-by-case basis.

TVR is not a municipal shelter and does not hold a government contract; state law requires we notify the appropriate municipal authority of any strays found at or brought to our facility and transfer them to their care at their discretion.
